Park Trail Drinking Point

Place a drinking stop alongside walking routes and resting areas.

The setting

A drinking stop near a park resting area offers a natural pause during a walk or after outdoor activity. This illustration uses planting and paving to relate the fountain to the trail, leaving a clear route for people moving through the space.

DF-17 provides a catalogue starting point for discussion. Consider how the trail and resting area are used when choosing a design, then coordinate water, drainage, fixing and maintenance access. Confirm suitability and configuration for the proposed outdoor location before settling the arrangement.

Planning points

01 Connect to resting areas while keeping the trail clear.

02 Coordinate services and surrounding paving.

03 Confirm outdoor configuration, fixings and maintenance.
